1. Executive Summary

Pakistan is home to one of the world's largest youth populations, with more than 64% of its citizens under the age of 30. This demographic reality presents both a challenge and a strategic opportunity: to harness the energy, creativity, and potential of young people by equipping them with market-relevant, technical, and entrepreneurial skills. Realizing this potential is especially critical in sectors that offer untapped economic opportunities and sustainable livelihoods. One such sector is fisheries, particularly in the Sindh province, which is endowed with abundant marine, brackish, and inland water resources supporting a diverse range of fishery activities.

Recognizing the potential of the fisheries sector for job creation and value chain enhancement, the Benazir Bhutto Shaheed Human Resource Research & Development Board (BBSHRRDB), in strategic collaboration with the Fisheries Department, Government of Sindh, launched a youth skills development program specifically targeting fisheries-related trades. The program aimed to bridge the skill gap in the sector, modernize traditional practices, and contribute to rural economic development.

Under this initiative, around 2,000 unemployed young individuals, including a substantial proportion of women, were trained in seven specialized fisheries trades. These included Hatchery Technician, Biofloc, Fish Nursing, Integrated Fish Farming, fish farming, Crab Fattening and Aquaponics. Trainings were conducted across multiple districts including village level and hatcheries of Fisheries Department with a strong focus on practical, hands-on learning, and competency-based curriculum aligned with BBSHRRDB Board.

To independently assess the performance and impact of the program, a third-party validation exercise was undertaken. The validation adopted a mixed-methods approach, incorporating quantitative surveys, in-depth interviews with stakeholders, focus group discussions with trainees, and field verification visits. Data triangulation was used to ensure accuracy and credibility of findings.

Key Validation Findings:

- High Trainee Satisfaction:

A large majority of trainees reported satisfaction with the overall training experience. Feedback highlighted the relevance of course content, quality of teaching, availability of equipment, and supportive learning environments. The practical components were particularly appreciated for their direct applicability.

- Significant Employment and Income Outcomes:

Approximately 43% of trained individuals were found to be gainfully employed, either through formal employment, or self-employment ventures. Employment uptake was particularly strong in trade aquaculture, fish farming, crab fattening, integrated farming and aquaponics. Several trainees reported enhanced income stability and increased social standing within their communities.

- Curriculum Relevance and Trainer Competence:

Curricula were designed based on occupational standards and labor market needs. Trainers were found to be qualified, certified, and experienced, capable of delivering instruction effectively while addressing diverse learning needs. Practical demonstrations and exposure visits further enriched the learning experience.

- Progressive Gender Inclusion:

The program succeeded in promoting gender inclusion, with a notable number of female participants engaged in trades traditionally dominated by men. This marks an important step toward gender mainstreaming in the fisheries sector and contributes to the broader goal of women's economic empowerment in rural Sindh.

- Community and Stakeholder Endorsement:

Local fisheries cooperatives, employers, and community leaders expressed strong support for the initiative. Many stakeholders highlighted the program's relevance in addressing local unemployment, enhancing sectoral productivity, and strengthening supply chains.

2. Introduction

The Vocational training has increasingly become a cornerstone of national development strategies, particularly in sectors that are undergoing rapid transformation. The fisheries sector, traditionally reliant on inherited skills and conventional practices, is now shifting towards sustainable aquaculture, modern marine technologies, and value-added processes. Recognizing this transition, the Fisheries Wing of the Livestock & Fisheries Department, with the support of the Benazir Bhutto Shaheed Human Resource Research and Development Board (BBSHRRDB), launched a targeted vocational training initiative. This program was specifically designed to equip the youth of Sindh with practical, market-relevant skills that align with the evolving demands of the fisheries and aquaculture industries.

5. Methodology

To ensure a comprehensive evaluation of the fisheries skill development program, a mixed-methods approach was adopted. This combined quantitative data collection with qualitative insights and field-based verification, allowing for robust triangulation of findings. The key components of the methodology are as follows:

• Quantitative Surveys

Structured surveys were administered to over 1,000 trainees across various training trades and districts. These surveys gathered measurable data on:

- Demographics (age, gender, education)
- Training quality perception
- Employment outcomes (self-employed, wage-employed, unemployed)

- Skill application and relevance to local contexts

The surveys provided a statistically significant dataset to analyze the program's reach and impact from the beneficiaries' perspective.

• Qualitative Interviews

In-depth interviews were conducted with key stakeholders to capture nuanced insights.

These included:

- Trainers and master trainers
- Program administrators (BBSHRRDB and implementing partners)
- Community leaders and employers
- Female trainees, to assess gender inclusiveness

These discussions focused on training relevance, implementation challenges, market linkages, and institutional support mechanisms.

• On-Site Inspections

A total of all active training centers were visited by field validation teams. These visits assessed:

- Infrastructure quality (classrooms, lab setups, ponds, tanks)
- Trainer qualifications and presence
- Trainee attendance and engagement
- Compliance with BBSHRRDB standards

Visual documentation and spot interviews were used to cross-verify self-reported data.

• Document Analysis

Program documentation was systematically reviewed, including:

- Attendance registers
- Training curricula

- Assessment and certification records
- Trainer contracts and HR files

This helped validate administrative integrity and the delivery of approved modules.

• Employment Tracing

To assess post-training outcomes, employment tracing was carried out through:

- Telephonic interviews and follow-up calls with graduates
- Home and field visits (especially for self-employed individuals)
- Employer confirmations (for those in wage employment)

This step verified actual employment status and gathered feedback on how training translated into livelihood opportunities.

This multi-layered methodology ensured that the validation process was both evidence-based and context-sensitive, providing reliable insights into program performance.

9. Training Highlights

• Curriculum Aligned with BBSHRDB Standards

The training curriculum was carefully designed in accordance with the guidelines and quality benchmarks set by the Benazir Bhutto Shaheed Human Resource Research and Development Board (BBSHRDB). This ensured that the training content was:

- Standardized across all locations and trades,
- Market-driven, focusing on employable skills,
- Competency-based, emphasizing hands-on skill acquisition and assessment.

• Real-Time Aquaculture Simulations

Participants engaged in practical, real-world aquaculture simulations, which included:

- Hands-on hatchery management: Feeding, water quality control, disease management, and breeding cycles.
- Field-based bio-floc and mud crab fattening setups: Trainees participated in managing live aquaculture systems during training.
- Aquaponics trials: Real-time integration of fish and plant cultivation systems, enhancing sustainable food production skills.

These simulations helped trainees apply theoretical knowledge to real-life environments, boosting their job readiness and confidence.

10. Field Observations and Stakeholder Feedback

• Trainee Feedback: High Satisfaction Levels

Field visits and interviews revealed that approximately 95% of trainees expressed overall satisfaction with the training programs. Key points of appreciation included:

- Practical relevance of course content to local aquaculture conditions.
- Hands-on learning opportunities, especially in live hatcheries and village-based setups.
- Supportive learning environments, particularly for female trainees.
- Job-oriented modules, which helped many participants, transition into employment or self-employment.

• Assessment of Trainers and Assistant Trainers

The validation process involved a comprehensive assessment of the trainers and assistant trainers engaged in the vocational training program. Individual meetings were conducted by the visiting validation team with each member of the training faculty to evaluate their qualifications, technical knowledge, and teaching competencies.

All trainers and assistant trainers were found to possess strong academic backgrounds, primarily holding degrees in Freshwater Biology and Fisheries, with many having pursued postgraduate qualifications such as M.Sc., M.Phil., and even Ph.D. degrees. Their subject matter expertise and pedagogical readiness were evident during the interactions.

To complement the faculty assessment, feedback was also gathered directly from the trainees. The majority of trainees expressed satisfaction with the performance of their trainers and assistant trainers. Many reported that the faculty demonstrated clarity in instruction, responsiveness to questions, and a practical approach to skill development. Several trainees even expressed aspirations to attain the same level of knowledge and professionalism as their instructors in the future.

Gender Mainstreaming and Inclusion

14. Challenges and Mitigation Measures

Challenge	Description	Mitigation Strategy
Literacy Constraints	Many trainees, especially in rural and coastal communities, had limited formal education, making it difficult to grasp written training materials.	Training content was adapted using visual aids, pictorial charts, demonstrations, and hands-on modules to make learning accessible and engaging for all literacy levels.
Remote Accessibility	Some training locations were geographically isolated, making it difficult for trainees to commute regularly to formal centers.	The program introduced mobile training units and rented local halls closer to trainees' communities to improve participation and reduce travel burdens.
Trainer Retention	Retaining skilled trainers in rural and remote areas was a persistent issue due to lack of incentives and professional growth opportunities.	To address this, performance-based bonuses were introduced, along with Training-of-Trainers (ToT) programs to provide growth pathways and increase trainer motivation.

15. Conclusion and Recommendations

Conclusion

The Fisheries related Skill Training Program has made a significant contribution to enhancing youth employability and modernizing aquaculture practices across Sindh. With 1,909 youth trained in diverse trades ranging from hatchery management to aquaponics the initiative has not only provided income-generating skills but has also promoted sustainable and locally adapted fisheries practices. High levels of trainee satisfaction, successful establishment of micro-enterprises, and tangible employment outcomes reflect the program's overall effectiveness and field relevance.

Moreover, gender inclusion, practical curriculum design, and field-based learning models have enhanced both accessibility and impact, particularly in rural and underserved communities.

Recommendations

• Expand Training to Include Marine Fisheries

While the current program has focused on inland and freshwater aquaculture, Sindh's coastal belt holds untapped potential in marine fisheries, including:

- Deep-sea fishing techniques
- Seafood processing and value addition
- Marine resource management

Inclusion of these trades would create diversified employment opportunities for coastal youth and strengthen the regional blue economy.

• Develop Fisheries Cooperatives for Trained Graduates

To sustain the gains of the training program, it is recommended to form cooperatives or cluster-based producer groups of trained graduates. These cooperatives can:

- Pool resources and share equipment
- Negotiate better prices and market access
- Access micro-finance and government schemes collectively

Such a model would enhance post-training sustainability and foster entrepreneurship among rural youth.

• Encourage Local Manufacturing of Aquaculture Equipment

There is growing demand for tools such as biofloc tanks, aerators, water testing kits, and fish feed mixers. Encouraging local manufacturing through:

- Skill-building in equipment fabrication
- Partnerships with small engineering workshops
- Startup incubation in rural areas will reduce dependency on imports and lower production costs for local farmers.

• Strengthen Digital Recordkeeping:

To monitor long-term outcomes and support continuous engagement:

- A centralized digital database of graduates should be maintained.
- Mobile apps or portals can help track employment, enterprise progress, and provide access to refresher courses.
- Alumni networks can also serve as peer-learning platforms and feedback channels for curriculum updates.

This digital transformation will support data-driven policy planning, enhance impact assessment, and help align training with evolving market needs.
